Have you ever thought your career path beyond highschool would be a straight line? Have it all figured out when you graduate? Mackenzie Veason will share her experiences that have given her unique perspectives on embracing change, exploring different paths, and finding opportunities in the unexpected!

Mackenzie is currently the Recruitment Coordinator at Great Plains College. Her educational journey has taken her through a variety of experiences that have helped shape who she is today. She graduated from Swift Current Comprehensive High School in 2019 and initially pursued a Bachelor of Education at the University of Regina. Navigating university online through COVID-19 was a challenge, and after some reflection, she decided to take a gap year to explore different opportunities. She even went to flight school before eventually finding her passion at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology (SAIT), where she graduated from the School of Hospitality and Tourism.
